To Whom It May Concern:

SAVE THE FROGS! is a California based public charity dedicated to protecting amphibian populations and to promoting a society that respects and appreciates nature and wildlife. On behalf of SAVE THE FROGS! and our members in California, across the USA, and around the world, I am writing to express our support of the creation of the Santa Cruz Redwoods National Monument. Designating the Coast Dairies property as a National Monument would grant this special property and its six precious watersheds one of the highest levels of permanent federal protection – preserving this exceptional local landscape for all future generations.

Designation as a National Monument would ensure that this diverse and ecologically rich landscape is managed with conservation as the highest priority – helping to protect rare and endangered plant and animal species. The National Monument would be open to the public, welcoming local and international visitors alike and offering recreational and nature-based educational opportunities so that students and outdoor enthusiasts of all ages can learn about and enjoy the region's culture, history, flora and fauna.

Because SAVE THE FROGS! agrees that these are important reasons to support the designation of the Santa Cruz Redwoods National Monument, I sign below as an endorser of this effort. Thank you for supporting amphibian conservation and environmental protection.

Sincerely,

Kerry Kriger
